MUCH GOOD WORK BEING DONE ON ROADS TODAY

Enthusiasm Shown by Citizens Who Turn Out Early as Volunteers

MANY TEAMS AT WORK

Highways in Every Direction Being Given Attention—Lunch Committee Busy

Togged out in a variety of costumes ranging from white duck trousers, white shirt, and broad brimmed straw hat to dark dress trousers, coat, vest, derby hat and above all white collar volunteer road workers for the roads near Charleroi this morning started out on their day's work in the observance of Good Roads' day. From before 7 o'clock until 8 o'clock or after automobile loads were to be seen headed for the country. It was a picturesque parade that hurried out of town.

Early this morning there was enthusiasm to burn, and plans had been laid so thoroughly that there was not much delay. Sore shoulders and backs were not taken into consideration, though they were regarded as inevitable. Early reports from various points indicate that lots of good work is being done. Men who know roads and how to improve them were placed in charge of "gangs." Bankers and business men are working alongside of everyday laborers under a "boss."

Picking and shoveling were first on the program and the way some of the business men and professional men labored indicated that at least they were in earnest. Over the county reports are the same.

The meeting place at 7 o'clock this morning was the borough building. At that hour teams and autos lined both sides of the street nearly from Fifth to Fourth streets.

Along about 10 o'clock some of the tired ones began to find excuses to return to town, but they quickly returned to their labors. Some of the workers actually deserted, it is rumored, but they made it a point to get some one else in their place.

No returns had been received up until 1 o'clock about the progress of the labors of the lunch committee, but they had matters well arranged before they went out, so they were safe.

All told there are about 150 men out today working on the roads Some of these are employed on the improvement of the road leading out from Charleroi in the direction of Bentleyville, others are working on Twilight roads and still others are at work on the roads toward Monongahela. The Speers road is getting its share of attention.

Fallowfield township people are busily engaged on roads throughout the township. They are working conjunctively with the Charleroi road boomers.

Where slag is needed on the roads, slag is being placed. The efforts of the state highway department to supply sufficient crushed stone to meet all needs has aided effectively in the general plan of improvement.

TOO MUCH WARMTH FOR TEN IMBIBERS

Police Have Busy Day Monday and Today Six of Police Court's Toll Are Sent Out to Work on the Roads

Six individuals are likely to be very sorry they chose Monday as the day for their meteoric lapse from grace before this day is over. Four others who likewise suffered from the warm weather and wandered from the straight and narrow are counting themselves exceedingly fortunate that they had the necessary long green with which to satisfy the demands of a insatiable police court treasury presided over by Burgess S. L. Woodward.

The six who are going to be sorry are men arrested for drunkeness and put to work today on the roads. Not only that but they were sandwiched in between persons to watch that they worked out their fine properly.

Ten arrests were made Monday, the first day of excessively warm weather. One man was overcome by the heat and other things so that he had to be carried to the lockup by Policeman Gust Brickner and an assistant.

MADAM CLIFFORD TO APPEAR AT PALACE

Madame Clifford, a world renowned mind reader will beat the Palace theatre the last three days of this week. She is well known here and the theatre patrons of Charleroi are impatiently awaiting her appearance. On Friday afternoon a special matinee will be held for women. Madame Clifford is said to possess a wonderful power over her own mind, by which she can read the mind of others, being able to read the minds of all people. She is also said to be mistress of phenomena.

CHANCE FOR McCLEARY TO TAKE WINTER'S NAP

Bull McCleary, the former State fullback, has picked out a fine place to spend the next two years. He will sojourn on Spitzergen Island, which is about 1,500 miles north of Norway. He ought not be bothered by the heat this summer, as the place he will be is 10 degrees from the North Pole. Next winter he can take a good long nap, for darkness prevails from October 22 to February 24 and no man can reach the island from September to May. He has signed a two years' contract to superintend a coal mine in that country.

SUPT. CRUMRINE GIVES DIPLOMAS IN THIS COUNTY

County Superintendent L. R. Crumrine has just completed sending out diplomas for the students of the county who passed successfully the common school examination. Two districts have not yet been reported but up to the present time he has issued 415 diplomas. So far he has received no report from the examination held in Smith township April 25.

The examination held at Burgettstown May 16, has not been reported as yet. When these two reports are received the diplomas will be issued to the successful applicants there which will complete the work. The number of graduates this year is larger than in former years which shows that the standard of the schools are being constantly raised and more people are able to take the tests successfully.

More than 800 certificates have also been issued to pupils who have attended school every day of last term without being tardy. It was thought that the deep snows would cut down the attendance but it is evident that many of the pupils made an effort to be on hand on time every day of the term.

LEGISLATION

Big business and the general public are pretty well satisfied that in the past there has been much superflous legislation, and entirely too many different interpretations of existing laws. The variety of meanings put on the most important laws—as for instance on the Sherman anti-trust law, has had an evil influence on the country that business men and the public now well recognize. Business men are beginning to comment upon the situation.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, in one of his weekly letters discusses the situation as follows:

"The most uncertain element in the outlook is of course the political situation. Nothing has done more to bring on the present reaction than the continued attacks upon business for political purposes. It must be recognized that many of the attacks were brought in by past misdeeds of our captains of industry. But on the other hand, it must be remembered that many of these acts could not now be repeated.

"The harm has been done, and much of it beyond repair. Let punishment fall where punishment is due, and let such laws as may be necessary to prevent repetition be enacted with as little disturbance as possible, but nothing is gained by hampering the reconstructive and regenerating work which is already making greater headway than is generally recognized in our industrial system.

"Higher standards of conduct are being established in all of our great industries and if our legislators would only work with rather than against economic reform they would diminish instead of increasing the number of unemployed. The new anti-trust bills are a source of considerable anxiety in business circles owing to their unreasonable stringency in regard to interlocking directorates, holding companies and price fixing. Some modifications of existing laws in these respects may be desirable, but they should be kept within reason, and it should not be forgotten that the country is suffering more from too much government interference than from any other evil."

AN EXPERT'S OPINION.

Charles S. Mellen's frank endorsement of government control of railroads and his declaration that the interest of trolley and steam railroads are now so wedded their divorce is almost impossible has impressed the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, says the New Castle Herald. Charles S. Mellen is one of the greatest railroad and trolley experts in the country. Such an opinion coming from him will carry much weight when the commission comes to sum up its conclusions after hearings of the innermost manipulations of the New Haven railroad.

It is a question whether or not the other directors of the New Haven will be called to give their reasons for the manipulation of that system. it matters little whether they are called or not, the Interstate Commission has met with the demands of the senate for information relative to high finances. It would scarcely be fair for the government to attempt to take over the control of the railroads wholly on the testimony of Mellen. However, the case on the evidence now completed, should be reported to Attorney General McReynolds and the senate. In the case of the New Haven, if the government had been in control of the finances, the West Chester deal, which cost the New Haven $35.-000.000, the Grand Central Terminal improvement, and numerous other deals that finally wrecked one of the richest railroad properties in the country, could not have been undertaken. If all the amazing findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission are reported to the attorney general and the senate, together with the opinion of Charles S. Mellen, it would not be surprising if the control of the nation's railroad properties are taken over by the government within a comparatively short time. The unscrupulous actions of one railroad has put all others in a bad light.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

There was one little chap in Charleroi this morning who was very fearful that the lunch committee for Good Roads' Day had not properly attended to its duties. This was John Berryman, the young son of J. D. Berryman.

Mr. Beryman, togged out in a pair of white tennis trousers that had seen better daysfi ETAETETETEEETE better days, an old shirt and a broad brimmed straw hat was just ready to leave the house, when little John came down stairs. He hurried over to his father and handed him a neatly wrapped package, insisting that he take it.

Mr. Berryman was finally prevailed upon to stick the package in his pocket. Upon getting down street he cautiously opened it and found that he had been thoughtfuly provided with a "lolly-pop", otherwise known as an "all-day sucker".

Mrs. Smith was an ardent worker in the cause of the prevention of cruelty to animals, and when Mrs. Brown came to tea, told her a pathetic tale of a donkey that she had rescued from a cruel master the day before.

The visitor was very interested and when she rose to go said:

"I am glad you have told me all those fascinating- things about animals, dear Mrs. Smith. I shall never see a donkey again without thinking of you."

MACKINNON GOES; "DAD" ALBRIGHT TO BE PRESIDENT

Uniontown Newspaper Man Selected as Head of Pawva League

Following the announcement Monday that Hugh A. MacKinnon had resigned as president of the Pennsylvania West Virginia league, the McKeesport team disbanded, many of the players leaving for home, without their pay.

President Wreath, of the Charleroi club, went to Monongahela today to see some of the business men, with a view of getting the Monongahela Independents come into the league and take the McKeesport schedule.

If Monongahela comes into the league the home games will be played at the ball park below New Eagle, where a splendid diamond has recently been placed in first class condition.

J. S. "Dad" Albright of Uniontown, will be the new president of the league. He is well fitted for the position and the league members feel confident of the growth of the league under his management.

President MacKinnon gave as his reason for resigning that the league was not affiliated with a major league, although he was in favor of it being.

TEMPER IS SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION

"Temper and children" is the subject which Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, state commissioner of health treats this week. He says:

"Our bodies are our gardens, to which our wills are gardeners.

"Physical, mental and moral health depend upon self control and the cultivation of this in children is of greater importance than any other single virtue.

"Who has not observed the disciplinary efforts of parents with a feeling that they could improve upon the methods employed and the results obtained. The causual observer usually decides that parents are more often to blame for the faults of their offsprings than the children themselves. Like begets like and the loss of self control by the father and mother is almost certain to be reflected in the child.

"With children of a high strung and nervous temperment the display of passion and the loss of self control is to be expected. To teach o child is to be expected. To teach a child gusts of temper is worthy of the most careful study, persistent and kindly effort.

"To permit a child to give way to passion during the early years of it's life is apt, when the strain of the real burdens of life are added in later years, to end in a nervous or mental breakdown.

"All students of nervous diseases are aware of the possibility of the inheritance of mental defects present in the parents. No one factor is of greater aid in equipping a child to battle with hereditary tendencies of this character than it's education in self control. It is of the greatest aid in the establishment of mental equilibrium and the maintenance of a sane pose. Knowledge, morality and a healthy, temperate physical existence are the fruits derived from the cultivation of this virtue."

Expensive Boat Race.

A writer in Bailey's Magazine of England has been figuring on the cost of the annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge, and says the expense to each crew may be approximately estimated at $3,000 for each. He then says that as the contest rarely takes more than twenty minutes the cost works out at about $300 per minute, or about $8 every time the oars dip into the water. The cost of the boats is placed at $250, and the oars at $70, the rest of the money going for preparation from October until the day of the race. The writer seems to think that $3,000 is a good deal of money to spend on a college crew (observes the New York Evening Post). It would be interesting to know what he would think of many times that amount spent upon the American college crews for the annual races.

"Yes, Mr. Spooner," asked the courteous manager; "what is the exact nature of your claim?"

"I have fallen down a long flight of steps and sustained damages that will disable me for months to come," replied he, "and I think that one hundred dollars damages should be awarded me."

"H'm!" said the manager as he toyed with his gold chain. "I have had your case investigated prior to your visit here, and, young man, I have every reason to believe that it was no accident. You knew the young lady's father was at home all the time."

OLD ERRORS THAT PERSIST

Have Been Handed Down for Generations, and Are Hard to Eradicate from Youthful Minds.

One is surprised to find that in the mental storehouses of many people lie hidden quaint and curious ideas, distorted historical truths, popular fallacies, and false beliefs which modern historical criticism has long since banished to the realms of the historical novelist, the newspaper writer, and the maker of almanacs.

To suggest a few of these old friends: The Church of England was founded by Henry VIII because the pope would not allow him to marry Anne Boleyn, meets one constantly. Another interesting item is that the puritans were so much purer and better than the members of the Church of England that they were persecuted for religion.

Only the children of the rich planters were ever educated in Virginia or in the other southern colonies, and these children were sent to England or bad tutors at home, for there were no schools of any kind in the south, is a statement sincerely believed, historians to the contrary notwithstanding.

The king of England caused the revolution because he taxed the Americans so heavily. The king, in the student's mind, laid the tax and acted in a most outrageous fashion in general. Such a body as the English parliament or the English theory of representation appear to have made no mental impression upon him.

A royal colony was always tyrannically governed, and was much worse than a charter or proprietary government, the word "royal" evidently striking the democratic mind as fundamentally wrong.

Poetic justice is also ever present as to the ultimate end of certain notable personages. Benedict Arnold and Aaron Burr always spend their last days in deepest poverty and remorse, while Columbus still persists in dying in prison and in chains. Jefferson is a peculiarly fortunate character, for the average pupil insists that he originated democracy and solemnly states that we owe our government by the people to the Sage of Monticello. He also wrote the constitution. This rather irritating falsehood is strangely common.—History Teachers' Magazine.

Centenaries of Gas.

In 1792 a manufacturer in Redruth, in Cornwall, named Murdock made gas to light his home and factory. Pall Mall in London, 1807, was the first street to be lighted by gas; Philadelphia introduced it in 1815; Boston in 1822, and New York in 1825. Gas is obtained from coal, which is heated in large retorts; the heavy gas drawn off passes by a pipe, called the hydraulic main, through a number of curved pipes called condensers, in which process coal tar and ammoniacal liquor condense and fall into a well. The gas passes to purifiers over slaked lime, which takes up sulphureted hydrogen and carbonic acid; it is then headed downward to the gasholder, a large tank having its base resting on water, and from which the gas is distributed to the consumers. Certain byproducts are obtained in the course of manufacture which are more valuable than the gas itself; these include coke, ammonia, anilin, phenol, or carbolic acid, naphthalene dyes, various artificial drugs and basic perfumes.—The Christian Herald.

World Coal Supplies.

The British Board of Trade has just published a report in which it states that the total known coal production of the world, in 1911 (exclusive of brown coal or lignite) was about 1,050,000,000 tons, of which the United Kingdom produced more than one-fourth and the United States more than two-fifths. As compared with population the production in the United Kingdom was six tons per head, and in the United States a little less than five tons.

The output in the five principal coal-producing countries during 1911 was as follows: United Kingdom, 271,899,000 tons; Germany, 158,164,000; France, 38,023,000; Belgium, 22,683,000; with the United States at the head with 443,025,000.

The average value per ton of the coal taken at the collieries was: United Kingdom, $1.982; Germany, $2.375; Belgium, $2.92; United States, $1.432.

Mail Carriers' New Job.

As the cost of numbering the population of the United States, and the collection of other statistics, cost the thirteenth census over $2.50 per inhabitant, Director Durand, in his annual report suggests that mail carriers be used for future census work.

He calls attention to the fact that much of the work was unsatisfactory, and also to the difficulty in inducing competent men to take up the work for the brief time in which they are engaged as numerators.

This branch, the field work, cost the government $7,223,385, or about $1.25 per inhabitant, and Mr. Durand believes that it can be done cheaper and better by the carriers, with their somewhat similar training. The postmaster general is said to favor the plan.

Egbert—I wish they would install some kind of an apparatus to warm up the chickens in cold storage, so they wouldn't appear to be so long dead."

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Throat Troubles, like continued coughs and colds, often seriously affect the lungs If you have not found any improvement from the treatment you have tried, investigate the many reports showing benefits and, in numerous cases, complete recoveries, brought about by the use of Eckman's Alterative. This is a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles, favorably known for more than fifteen years Read this case—

Convent of St. Anne. Sanford, Fla.

"Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting of Eckman's Alterative, I determined as a last resort to try it After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alterative, to my grateful and daily relief In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all I would say of it.

PROPOSES TENT FOR SUFFERERS; RAISING MONEY

Miss Marie Watson, in Charge of Tuberculosis Dispensary, Has Plan

In the interests of tuberculosis work carried on in this community, Miss Marie Watson of Monessen was in Charleroi this morning and while here took up the subject of providing a tent for Monessen and Charleroi tuberculosis patents at the Charlero-Monessen hospital. Miss Watson, who is in charge of the state tuberculosis dispensary at Monessen, has a plan whereby a tent can be located conveniently near the hospital on the hospital grounds in which tuberculosis patents may be segregated and attended until they can be admitted to state sanitariums.

Monessen is to provide half the expense of such a tent and Charleroi half, according to Miss Watson's plans because these two towns will receive the benefit. The cost of upkeep will be provided for through other methods, but the cost of the tent will have to be met by donation Miss Watson has asked churches of Charleroi to help. She states that already Monessen has raised its share. The cost of the tent without some of the extras that will be necessary will be $218.56.

That such a movement is important she proves by giving a few facts. There is nearly always a big waiting list at the state sanitariums, which means that patients must wait sometime as a rule before they can be admitted. This is not only a handicap to the patients themselves, but nearly always provides a source of serious menace to others with whom the afflicted person comes in contact. It is to obviate such difficulties that Miss Watson proposes the tent idea.

Miss Watson has asked for donations and has asked the Mail to receive them at this office.

Proposals.

Sealed proposals will be received for the construction of a club building for the Loyal Order of Moose No. 103 Charleroi, Pa., until the 15th day of June, 1914. Separate proposals will be received for the heating of the building.

The building committee reserves the right to reject any and all proposals submitted.

Drawings and specifications may be secured at the office of J. A. Lohman, Architect, Monessen, Pa., where all proposals are to be delivered. 267-t3

TRAINING CHILD MIND

DISORDERLINESS A THING TO BE CORRECTED EARLY.

Responsibility Rests with Mother When She Allows Bad Habits to Become a Settled Thing in the Life of Offspring.

If I had only realized when I was a child how much more work it made to have people disorderly and careless about their things I am sure I should have been more careful. But I didn't realize, writes Ruth Cameron in the Milwaukee Sentinel

That is the oft expressed sentiment of one young woman who has recently gone to housekeeping in a home of her own. And I fancy there are many of us who could say the same thing—we didn't realize! And not about that matter only, but about many matters.

I have heard it said that children are naturally selfish. I beg to differ. I think they are naturally full of the most generous impulses. But I do admit that they are naturally thoughtless and that is what makes them seem selfish. It is not that they would be deliberately selfish and unkind; it is just that they have lived so short a time that they do not understand the trouble and pain and self-denial they may be the cause of—they just don't realize!

I once knew a wise mother who grasped this fact and based her training on the effort to make her children realize exactly what they were doing when they were thoughtless or careless or unreasonable.

For instance, take the very matter of which the young housewife spoke. This mother had a daughter who was terribly slack about leaving things around. She would come into the house and leave her coat on one chair and her fur on another, throw her gloves on the table and put her hatpins on the mantelpiece and only put away her hat because she was afraid something would happen to the feathers if she didn't. Her mother talked and talked to no avail. Finally she decided to make the daughter realize the trouble she was causing, so she told her that for the next week she, the mother, would not pick up one thing that any of the children left lying around, that her daughter must keep the house in order as a punishment for past misdeeds and that if she failed to do so she would not be allowed to go to a certain function to which she was looking forward.

As all the children inherited more or less a tendency to disorderliness from an artistic father, her task was by no means easy Needless to say, the end of the week found her saying: "I never realized how much trouble leaving things round made. I will be more careful in the future."

Again, when the two older children got the habit of teasing for things that were beyond the family purse, this wise woman, instead of scolding, simply took them into her confidence about the family income and outgo, asked their help about keeping the accounts, and without saying a word of her purpose to them, soon made them realize for themselves why they could not have everything that other children had And after that she had no more trouble with teasing

Look back into your own childhood and see if the unkind, the selfish, the thoughtless, the cruel things that you did were not all done because you did not realize.

What better basis, then, could we have for training our children than helping them to realize now instead of years afterward when it is too late?

Queen Helene's Charity.

The Italian people, who are given to sentiment, adore the Queen Helene because she loves the poor. Recently a woman with her little boy presented herself at the dispensary of the Via Morsini, at Rome. The child was alarmingly ill When the doctor came to see the little patient, a woman, plainly dressed, who had entered a moment before, stopped to hear what the physician was saying. Then, seeing the mother in tears, she said: "Your child will require special care. It will be necessary to send him to the hospital." "I know that he will die there," said the poor mother, "and yet I cannot keep him at home, we are so poor." "I understand you," said the woman, sympathetically, "I, too, am a mother," and she placed in the hand of the poor woman a bank note for 100 lire. "Your child shall lack for nothing, my good woman. Come and see me at the palace." And this was Queen Helene.

His Part in the Game.

William Faversham was talking modestly about an article on women's Easter dress that he had written.

"If the article made a hit," he said, "it was because I wrote it calmly, without heat or rancor. I didn't treat this important subject like Spratt.

"Spratt, you know, said to his bookkeeper:

"'My wife brought home a new Easter hat last evening—one mass of yellow paradise plumes—ninety-seven plunks.'

"'How'd you like it?' asked the bookkeeper.

"'Oh, I just raved over it,' said Spratt."
